

GLADYS AND COUNT ARE MARRIED NOW

Wedding Most Brilliant That Has Occurred in New York for Several Years.

BRIDAL COUPLE AVOID THROW BY STRATEGY

After Brief Stay at Newport Will Depart for Count Sze- chenyi's Hungarian Home.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.—Glady's Vanderbilt, daughter of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, was married to Count Lazlo Scheuchy, a young Hungarian nobleman, in the Fifth avenue home of Mrs. Vanderbilt, at noon today. The wedding was probably the most brilliant that has taken place in this city for several years. Although the number of guests was limited to about 250, mainly relatives and immediate friends of the two families, there was included Baron Hengelmüller von Hengerver, the Austrian Ambassador to the United States; James Bryce, the British ambassador; and the prominent members of New York society. Outside of the Vanderbilt home a great crowd of the curious public gathered to get a glimpse of the bride and her bride and watching the arrival of the guests.

Police Keep Good Order.
There was no disorder among the crowd, for the streets were patrolled and kept clear by a force of nearly one hundred policemen.

Police lines were drawn across Fifth seventh and Fifty-eighth streets, between which two streets the house stands and the uninvited public was not permitted on the Fifth avenue sidewalk in front of the house. The gathered in large numbers in the square in front of the Plaza hotel, but the curiosity was satisfied only by witnessing the arrival of the count and the guests.

Promptly at noon the wedding ceremony was performed in a large drawing room on the Fifth avenue side of the house, in which a bower of palms and arbor of orchids were constructed. Beneath the arbor a temporary altar was erected, and in front of this the ceremony was performed by Mgr. T. J. Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's cathedral. The bride was escorted by her elder brother, Cornelius Vanderbilt down the aisle, bordered with palms entwined with a great abundance of orchids at the altar.

The count was attended by his brother, Count Dienys Szechiyi. The ceremony of giving the bride away was performed by Cornelius Vanderbilt.

The gown worn by the bride was of ivory satin with embroidery, polka dots and garlands of orange blossoms. Her veil was of point lace. She carried a shower bouquet of orchids and gardenias. The bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombly, her cousin and Miss Dorothy Whitney, daughter of William C. Whitney. The bride was also attended by her little niece, Miss Florida Payne Whitney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney.

Among the ushers were Count Stefano Scechi and Count Paul Esterhazy. Among the guests were Baron Hengemuller Von Hengervar, the Austrian Ambassador to the United States, and his wife, and Alfred and Regina

Many of the most prominent members of New York society were among the guests, while outside the Vanderbilt residence a great crowd of the curious public thronged the sidewalk and street.

Following the ceremony a wedding breakfast was served, the guests being distributed at various tables throughout the house. All the rooms were beautifully decorated with palms and orchids.

Escape by Stratagem.

Immediately after the wedding breakfast, the Count and Countess departed upon their honeymoon trip, eluding clever strategy the throng of people that pressed about the Vanderbilt mansion, eager to catch a fleeting glimpse of the bridal couple. A brougham, driven by a coachman and footman, the Vanderbilts' favorite mode of conveyance, drew up before the mansion at the Fifty-seventh street entrance. A white rosette decorated the bridle of the horses, and a white ribbon was tied to the whip. The crowd broke through the police lines and swarmed

Meanwhile, Alfred G. Vanderbilts brother, the bride, drove up quickly in the Fifty-eighth street entrance in a big touring car. The doors of the mansion opened and the Countess and her husband, in their traveling costumes, stepped into the machine and were whirled away before the crowd was aware what had happened. The destination of the bridal couple is said to be Newport, where they will remain until early next month, when they will depart for Count Szechenyi's home in Hungary.

Chamberlain Reaches London.
LONDON, Jan. 27.—Joseph Chamberlain arrived in town tonight to be in touch with his political friends at the opening of Parliament. Although the improvement in his health continues, Mr. Chamberlain has no intention of taking his seat in Commons at the present session. He will make a trip on the continent shortly.

Governor Boies Improving.
LOS ANGELES, Jan. 27.—Ex-Gov. Horace A. Boies of Iowa, who arrived in this city a day or two day, after having been taken seriously ill while enroute here from his home, is improving. He is domiciled in a cottage at the beach and will return to Waterloo, Iowa, as soon as his health will permit.

Senator Wetmore Sworn In.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.—George F. Wetmore today took the oath of office as United States Senator from Rhode Island.